At thirty-two, Ari loves his life in small town northern Michigan, running his aquatic pet store, but he's always yearned to visit a coastal state. Inexplicably, he's felt a connection with the ocean his entire life, and when his cousin Todd calls to ask him to be his best man at his California ocean-side wedding, Ari jumps at the chance for a much needed vacation. When he arrives in San Diego, however, he makes some discoveries about himself and finds love in the process. He also finds himself embroiled in a disturbing murder mystery that he ultimately helps to unravel.

Another great book by Jeff Erno!

By Heather Leonard

This is the second installment in Jeff Erno's Tital Crest series, and it was as excellent as the first. I enjoy Jeff's writing style, and am always thoroughly entertained. This book moved quickly, and kept me glued to my tablet until I read the last word. I wish it was a little longer, and we got to see more of what happened after the big reveal, but hopefully there will be more books in this universe and we'll get to see what happens. The ending was awesome, and so funny. I won't give anything away, but do yourself a favor and pick up this book.
