Get a pulse on the new generation

By M. H. Bayliss

It's hard to believe someone as young as Vivek has put together such a well written book that combines anecdotes and research to provide the older generation with insight into generation Z. I'll admit I often have to ask my 12 year old how to do something on the Iphone, but now I understand more fully HOW and WHY this generation deals with technology on a day by day basis and what makes them tick. His style reminds me of Malcolm Gladwell - very readable and engaging. Kudos to Mr. Pandit for producing such a succinct study on the next generation.

A wonderful read!

By Amazon buyer

The author did a good job of explaining what's different about Generation Z, and why they think differently than other generations. Personal anecdotes are supported by research studies to illustrate the impact that this generation is having on society. Unlike other books about Gen Z that have a marketing angle, this book covers topics as diverse as Gen Z's views on competition vs collaboration, technology and identity development, education, science, politics, and privacy. I have two children in high school, and feel better about their future after reading this book!

Five Stars!

By Amazon Customer

As a mother of a 17 year old girl who will be graduating from high school as well as someone who deals with the general public, I was excited to hear about this book. After reading it, I found myself pleasantly impressed with this young man's insight, research and one-on-one interviews with his peers. Vivek has done a great job in helping us older folks understand this new generation. I am very glad he sees great things can be accomplished by sticking together. And what is more is that he convinced me that Generation Z will produce more because of self discovery.

We should all look within ourselves as he has! -C. C. Justus
